SEGUIN- When the Guadalupe-Blanco River Authority opens area lakes for public use , they will also ask water recreationists to “Know Your Lake” before resuming normal boating, fishing or skiing activities.

“Most lakes will be open within the next week,” said GBRA director of project development David Welsch. “Even though the flood debris removal program will be finished, people need to remember that the lakes have changed as a result of the October 1998 flood. We are installing signs at public boat ramps and posting flyers in stores and other public locations advising lake users to start their recreation activities slowly and carefully.” The signs will contain the following information:
