As flows along the Guadalupe River downstream recede, the USACE plans to maintain Canyon Reservoir releases at about 5,000 cfs. Complete vacating of the flood pool will continue over the next few weeks with completion to the normal elevation of 909 mean sea level (msl) expected by June 25, 2015, barring additional rainfall events.

Members of the public along the lakes and river downstream of Canyon should take reasonable precautions regarding the strong current of the flowing water. All recreational interests should take note of these conditions. Because of the amount and duration of the releases, flow conditions in the lower counties along the Guadalupe River may continue well into the summer.
